The Intelligencer.

OFFICE: No. 15 Quincy Street.

MONDAY, JANUARY 1, 1872.

The Distribution of the Intelligencer in the City.

Mr. LEWIS M. LAVYON, who has for several years delivered the INTELLIGEN-CER to city subscribers, has resigned the business, and we have arranged will business, and we have arranged will Messrs R. H. Gillesey & Co. to take They charge of it, beginning to-day. They will deliver the papers and collect the dues therefor the same as has been done heretofore, with just one change, which an experience of several years has convinced us will be advantageous to subscriber, cellector and publisher; that is, that collections will be made regularly each seek, instead of as heretofore. The H. Travers. publication of the paper requires regular weekly cash expenditures; we require weekly settlements of Messrs. GILLESTY & Co.; and they in turn will be obliged to make weekly collections from subscribers. Our experience is that a large proportion of our subscribers would rather pay weekly than have the bills run longer. Others may think it an annoy-ance to be called on weekly. If they should find it so they may avoid it by paying in advance for such period as they may choose, as mail subscribers do. The weekly collections are very small in individual cases, but in the aggregate they are important to the collector and to ourselves, and we have found by experience that regular and prompt collections are indispensable to the successful distribution of a paper by carriers. The rule will be rigidly adhered to, and we trust it may not prove annoying to a single subscriber. Our patrons will soon learn when to expect the collector and will really, we think, find it little trouble to be prepared with the small sum required each week. In turning over a new leaf in the matter of collections, we expect to make some imrovement in that of delivery. No effort will be spared to deliver the paper with possible. So far as neglect of carriers is concerned, we hope to remedy that almost entirely. To prevent the depredations of paper thieves (something we cannot guard against) we suggest to patrons who have not a secure place where their papers may be thrown, to provide a box in a conven ient location with an opening just large enough to put the paper in. This will protect it from both thieves and weather.

As there may be some changes of carriers, there may be irregularities for a few If subscribers are missed, we should like them to report at once to this office, where missing copies will be supplied, and steps taken to prevent a recur

The accounts of the new collector begin to-day. All dues for papers delivered up to this time should be paid to the former collector, Mr LAYTON; and both on his account and our own, as there is a large sum outstanding, we trust subscribers will new year with r clean sheet.
Of Mr. Layron, who gives up the distribution at his own request and through no wish of ours, we can say that in the many years of his connection with our s we have ever found him faithful and assiduous. Our relations have been Into whatever new fields he may in future
